GREETING!

The "Parkhursts," old and young, wherever located between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, descendants of Ephraim Parkhurst of Framingham, Massachusetts—will please accept the compliments of the author—

WELLINGTON E. PARKHURST.

Clinton, Mass., Jan. 1, 1897.

COAT OF ARMS.

THE PARKHURST FAMILY.

The family is of ancient English origin, the name appearing as early as A. D. 1000, although, as yet, the direct genealogy can be traced only three or four centuries.

The signification of the name is seen in its construction, "Park" meaning a public ground, and "Hurst" a grove or wood. The History of the Isle of Wight mentions a royal park called "Parkhurst Forest." Two centuries ago a colony of Parkhursts migrated from Parkhurst, on that island, to Surrey County, in England, from which branch of the family the Americans of this name are supposed to have descended. The original seat of the clan in Surrey was at "Parkhurst Manor," between Epsom and Guilford, confiscated about 1745, as tradition says, for connection of its possessors with the rebellion in favor of the exiled Stuarts. In 1635 a Parkhurst was Lord Mayor of London, but whether of our American branch is not certainly known. Bishop Parkhurst of Norwich, England, who died in 1574, is supposed to have been the grandfather or the great-grandfather of George, the first settler in America. George's daughter, Phebe, married one Thomas Arnold, who bought 20,000 acres of land in the territory now Providence, R. I., making the purchase from the Indians, and in 1640 he was a freeman in Watertown; Arnold was able to trace his ancestry back through seventeen generations to Ynir, King of Gwentland, A. D. 1100, who was a direct descendant from Cadwaladr of Wessex, King of the Britons from 688 to 728.

The Parkhurst family had a coat of arms granted them in the second year of Queen Elizabeth's reign. (See opposite page.)

Description: Shield, silver; cross ermine in each quarter; a buck trippant; (walking). Crest; a demi-griffin, with wings addorsed, in black, holding in the dexter paw a cutlass in silver, with hilt and pommel of gold. Ground of shield of all the above, purple. Motto: "The Cross our Stay."

The descent of the American families from the George, mentioned above, was as follows :

I.—George, living in Watertown, Mass., in 1643.

II.—George, Jr., was born in 1618, and lived in Watertown.

III.—John was born in 1644, also resided in Watertown.

IV.—John, Jr., Dea., born in 1671, lived in Weston.

V.—Josiah, born in 1706, also resided in Weston.

VI.—Josiah, Jr., born in 1736; he first settled in Weston, and in 1762 removed to Framingham, building a house which he located a few rods north of the railroad bridge, east of the Concord river, near the subsequent site of the "Cutler mills," the location being afterwards, in 1835, covered by the embankment of the Boston & Worcester railroad. One daughter, Molly, married Josiah Hemenway, the ancestor of numerous Framingham people of that name; another daughter, Lydia, married Solomon Brackett, whose descendants have resided in the north part of Framingham. One son, Aaron, removed to Stafford, Ct., his numerous descendants now living in that vicinity. Two other sons, John and Josiah, settled in New Hampshire. The fifth son was Ephraim. After the marriage of this son his father lived with him for a while, and then removed to Marlboro, N. H., where he died in 1832 in his 95th year.

VII.—Ephraim was born in Framingham, in 1765, three years after the removal of his father to that town from Weston. On May 18, 1790, Ephraim bought land of James and Abel Greenwood, a short distance southerly of his father's house, on the other and westerly side of the river, building the "Parkhurst House," which is well remembered by many of the residents of that section of Middlesex County. As another has written: "It was one of the finest dwellings in the vicinity, and many were the parties and pleasant gatherings beneath its roof." It was a square, two-story building. Having passed into other hands it was eventually bought by the Boston Water Works corporation, and both house and barn were demolished in 1883; its site is now unoccupied, the orchard in front with that in the rear between the house and river, both set out nearly fifty years ago by Ephraim's son, Charles, with slight traces of the front yard embankment, alone remaining to mark the location of the old home. Here, for many years, Ephraim carried on the bakery business, also his farm of about 100 acres. On December 27, 1788, he married Elizabeth Look, a daughter of Capt. John Look. Ephraim spent the remainder of his life in this home; his wife died December 25, 1825, aged 58 years. He subsequently married Mrs. Mary Adams, a daughter of Capt. Benjamin Edwards, who died in 1870. Ephraim died January 20, 1850, aged 85, his burial, with that of his first wife, a son, Jeremy, and a daughter, Louisa, being in the family lot in the old cemetery between Parks Corner and South Framingham, among the friends and neighbors of his long life.

All of Ephraim's children were born in this last Parkhurst house, excepting the eldest, John Look, who was born in Josiah's house, also all of the children of his son, Charles.

THE HOMESTEAD.

- I—Charles F. W. Parkhurst was born at the old homestead, March 5, 1808; his education was acquired in the public schools and at the Framingham Academy. On November 8, 1832, he married Mary Goodale of Marlboro, a school teacher, and the daughter of Nathan Goodale. Charles resided on the farm previously owned by his father, Ephraim, of whom he had bought, in 1832; in the winter months he taught district schools, commencing to teach at the age of 19, in the Salem End district in his own town; he taught 21 successive winters, and later, one additional winter. His several schools began "the first Monday after Thanksgiving" of the following years:

In 1827, in Salem End; 1828, Sherburne; 1829, Holliston; 1830 and 1831, at Parks Corner; 1832, Salem End; 1833, East Part Framingham; 1834, Salem End; 1835, Unionville; 1836 and 1837, Salem End; 1838 and 1839, Framingham Center; 1840, Depot, South Framingham; 1841, "Common," Framingham; 1842, Framingham Center; 1843, 1844, 1845 and 1846, in Home District; 1847, Rockwood district, Ashland; and again, five years later, in 1852, in Home district—having at the close of his teaching a record of the names and ages of 770 different pupils.

He also taught many writing schools. In the summer of 1853 his wife, in addition to her household cares, taught the Home district school.

THE SCHOOL-HOUSE.

Upon the incorporation of the new town of Ashland, in 1846, which act included a portion of Framingham, as well as of Holliston and Hopkinton, he was elected its first town clerk, and some of his neatly written "marriage publications," which were posted on the church doors, are still in existence. He also held the offices of school committee and assessor.

Of the Congregational parish he was the clerk several years, and also chorister of the village choir, faithfully attending the Saturday night "sings" in the chapel; he was proficient on the single (and double) bass-viol, which he played at the dedication of the Baptist church in Framingham Center, January 1, 1827, and in later choirs.

In October, 1853, he sold the homestead after 21 years of occupancy, and removed to Clinton, where he adopted the profession of accountant, serving several years as clerk for Messrs. Parker & Palmer, machine manufacturers, and for 21 years as clerk and paymaster for the Clinton Wire Cloth company. He was a member of the Clinton School Board several years, serving as chairman for a time; he was also elected a town assessor; for many years he was a deacon in the Congregational church in Clinton. He there died Feb. 9, 1878, and on March 15, 1887, his widow followed him, their burial being in the family lot in Wildwood cemetery in Ashland, from which eminence a full view is had of the valley in which was situated the ancestral home.

Wellington Evarts, born in Framingham, January 19, 1835; he attended the public schools and at Framingham Academy; in May, 1853, he went to Clinton, taking a position in the office of the Bigelow Carpet Company; he was later paymaster at the Lancaster Quilt Company's mill, and afterwards assistant treasurer of the Clinton Savings Bank. He held the office of town clerk 6 years, and for 15 years has been a member of the school board; he has also filled the offices of town treasurer, library director and assessor, and for four years was the superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School; he represented the Worcester 13th district four years in the Legislature, in the sessions of 1890, '91, '92 and '93, serving as House Chairman of the joint committee on Education, also of Public Charitable Institutions, also as chairman of the state legislative delegation to the Chicago World's Fair, visiting in the "Massachusetts House," June 17, 1893. For the past 31 years he has been the editor of the Clinton Weekly Courant, and also for several years the editor of the Clinton Daily Item. On September 13, 1866, he married Hattie F. Fairbank of West Boylston, who died December 13, 1885. On August 9, 1887, he married Georgiana B. Warren of Framingham.

Helen Maria Adelaide, born in Framingham, April 27, 1837; attended the Framingham Academy, and also studied at Monson and Ipswich Seminaries, and at Mt. Holyoke Seminary in South Hadley. She subsequently taught in the Clinton Grammar School, in Dr. Howe's Institution for Feeble-Minded Children at South Boston, and at Newport, R. I.; she was also a teacher of music. Resides in Worcester.

Charles Henry, born in Framingham, April 17, 1842; in December, 1853, at the age of 11, and with his father's family, he removed from Ashland to Clinton; he there attended the public schools, fitting for college at Lancaster, with Rev. M. C. Stebbins; he graduated from Amherst in 1866, at the age of 24; in 1867 and '68 he was the principal of the Amherst High School; in 1869 he went to Germany for study, where he remained six months; on November 23, 1870, he married Nellie R. Bodman of Northampton, who had previously been one of his pupils at Amherst. For a time he occupied the chair of Greek and Latin in Williston Seminary, in Easthampton. Having decided to enter the ministry, in 1872, with his wife, he returned to Germany where, at Halle and Leipsic, he spent eighteen months studying theology under Drs. Tholuck and Erdmann. Upon returning to Massachusetts he received two calls; one from Pepperell and the other from Lenox; the last he finally accepted, being ordained May 14, 1874, as pastor of the Congregational church in Lenox. In 1880, he accepted an urgent call to the pastorate of the Madison Square Presbyterian church in New York City as the successor of Dr. William Adams, where he still remains. Several volumes of his sermons have been published, and he has written for the press. In 1894, as president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, being the successor of Dr. Howard Crosby, he was largely instrumental in the overthrow of Tammany and in the complete reform of the city government. From Amherst College he has received the honorary degrees of D. D. and L.L. D. He spends his summers in Switzerland, where he has done considerable mountain climbing, having reached, without accident, the summits of the Dom, Weisshorn, Breithorn, Rothorn, and the heights of the Matterhorn.

Elizabeth Goodale, born in Framingham, June 20, 1845, and died in Ashland, the first death after the incorporation of the town, April 11, 1846.

Howard Elmore, born in Ashland, September 13, 1848, removing at the early age of five with the family to Clinton; there he attended school, fitting for college under Prof. Josiah H. Hunt, and graduating from Amherst in 1873, at the age of 25. During his college course he was the organist of the Old South Church in Worcester. On August 2, 1873, he married Louise S. Wood, an only daughter of Mrs. Edward Kendall of Worcester, and they at once sailed for Germany, where Howard pursued his musical studies for two years in Stuttgart, Berlin, also in Liverpool, under Profs. Speidel, Haupt, and Best. Returning home, he took the position of organist at the First Unitarian church in Boston, subsequently filling the same position at the Mt. Vernon church in same city and residing at Allston, where his wife died January 15, 1877. He afterwards went again to Germany, remaining another two years and studying music with Profs. Rheimberger and Kellarmann. Returning to this country he located in New York city, being engaged as organist at the Madison Square church of which his brother, Charles, was the pastor, and where he still remains—also teaching organ and piano music. He has given much attention to ornithology, and in 1895 wrote an illustrated volume entitled "The Birds' Calendar." He was one of the first in this country to ride a bicycle, and some ten years ago took several prizes at county fairs in Massachusetts; he also rode over a large section of Europe on a high wheel. On November 17, 1885, he married Mary S. Huss of New York. Children:
