DAVID RITTENHOUSE¹, of MATTHIAS³, of NICHOLAS²; of WILLIAM².

Gen.	Individual No.	Family No.
5	4200	1	Elizabeth Rittenhouse , b. about 1767; m. Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant, Esq., of Philadelphia, at the close of the year 1788; it was his second marriage.

Mr. Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant was an eminent lawyer in Philadelphia, and for some time Attorney General of Pennsylvania; he was one of the five persons delegated on the 20th of February, 1776, by the convention of New Jersey (where he then resided) to represent that colony in Congress. His colleagues were the late Governor Livingstone and John de Hart, Richard Smith and John Cooper, Esquires. Mr. Sergeant died with the yellow fever, in Philadelphia, on the 8th of October, 1793. He left a son and two daughters by this marriage. He was the first Attorney General of Pennsylvania.

Instead of leaving the city during the time of the yellow fever, 1793, he remained in the city, and was a leader of those who devoted their time and money to the establishing of hospitals for the relief of the sick. No doubt many lives were saved through his action, although he became a prey to the disease and died while engaged in the good cause. Their children were Esther, David and Frances.

5	4201	2	Esther Rittenhouse , b. about 1770; m. Nicholas Baker Waters, M. D., of Philadelphia, in 1790, a young physician of respectable talents and amiable disposition; he died of a pulmonary disease in August, 1794, at a very early age, leaving one son, who died young, on September 4, 1813, aged 22 years, named David Rittenhouse Waters.

David Rittenhouse named his second daughter Esther, in compliment to his sister, Mrs. Thomas Barton. In a letter to the Rev. Thomas Barton, written on the occasion of the birth of this younger child, he says: "To me it is a matter of indifference, but to my Eleanor it was a great disappointment, to have a girl, having promised herself a boy; and it had long since been resolved that this child, if a son, should be called Thomas, after yourself." The oldest daughter was named Elizabeth, after his own mother.

5	4202	3	There was one daughter by the second marriage, but she died quite young.

Dr. Miller was of distinguished ancestry. His grandfather, Rev. John Miller, a Presbyterian pastor, of Dover, Del., came from Boston, Mass. The latter's mother was a great-granddaughter of John Alden, one of the heroes of the Mayflower, and associated in New England history with the romantic story of Captain Miles Standish. On the maternal side Dr. Miller was no less distinguishedly connected. His mother was the daughter of Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant (if so, must be by second marriage), a member of the Continental Congress, and his great-grandmother was a daughter of Jonathan Dickinson, the first President of Princeton College,

FREDERICK CARROLL BREWSTER.

Ex-Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, ex-Attorney-General of Pennsylvania, and one of the leaders of the Philadelphia bar, was born in Philadelphia, in the old city proper, May 15, 1825.

In very early boyhood Judge Brewster was sent to the old Friends' Select School, at Fourth and Arch streets. There he was carefully trained and rapidly fitted out for college. He entered the University of Pennsylvania, then located in the old Ninth street buildings, while Rev. Dr. Ludlow, the father of the late Judge Ludlow, was provost. The young student displayed wonderful industry and aptness for learning whatever was taught him, until in 1841, when, just about sixteen years of age, he graduated with all the honors of the institution, making a public address at the commencement. William Henry Rawle and Hon. Horatio Gates Jones were college mates with him. Judge Brewster has always maintained an active relationship with the friends of the University, and he has often given evidence of the interest he feels in the permanent reputation and future welfare of his Alma Mater. He was for several years president of the Society of the Alumni, and on several occasions he has been called upon to deliver addresses to the students and patrons of the University of Pennsylvania, in West Philadelphia, and he was the orator at the laying of the corner-stone of the new edifice.

In testimony of the esteem entertained for him by the University, he was, some years ago, honored with the degree of Doctor of Laws. Shortly after his graduation he entered the office of his father, where he enjoyed rare advantages for the study of the law. In 1844 he was admitted to practice, and speedily gained an extensive and lucrative patronage. This success was principally achieved in the civil courts, but it is by his conduct of famous criminal trials in which he has participated that his distinguished reputation as one of the famous lawyers of his day was first won. For his success in several famous criminal cases, see "The Saturday Review and Republic" of May 9, 1891.

In 1862 he was chosen to the official position of City Solicitor. Three years later he was re-elected to the same office. He did not, however, finish his second term, in consequence of being chosen, in October, 1866, a Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia. His term of office was for ten years, but, on October 23, 1869, he was tendered the Attorney-Generalship of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by Governor Geary. He accepted this office, retaining it until the close of the Governor's term of office. He then returned to the practice of his profession, in which he still continues. Although all his life a very busy man, he has found time to collate and write several valuable legal works.

Judge Brewster was married, in 1850, to Emma, daughter of the late W. P. C. Barton, M. D. (a grandson of Rev. Thomas Barton and Esther Rittenhouse, sister of David Rittenhouse, the celebrated astronomer), at one time senior Surgeon of the United States Navy. Of his sons, two, Frederick C. and Francis E., are prominent members of the Philadelphia bar.

Daniel Evans, the husband of Eleanor Rittenhouse (No. 40, page 214, Vol. I, History of Rittenhouse Family), died suddenly, he having quitted the harvest field somewhat indisposed; retired to bed, and in a few minutes afterwards was found dead; he died about 1790.

In this family Eleanor Evans spent the latter part of her life, and died about 1809. She was the mother of Hannah Evans. In February, 1816, Mrs. Smith was taken down with typhus pleurisy; Miss Armstrong was called on to watch over the sick-bed. In a few days the doctor was prostrated, and next Miss Armstrong, all three dying within a space of two weeks.

Annie Rittenhouse, sister of David Rittenhouse, died in 1762, aged 26 years. She was married to George Shoemaker, and had one son, Jacob, who was killed in battle in 1781, in South Carolina; had advanced to the rank of lieutenant. Memoirs on David Rittenhouse, p. 143.

ESTHER RITTENHOUSE¹ (Barton, Rev. Thomas), of MATTHIAS², of NICHOLAS², of WILLIAM².

5 4261 1 William Barton, m. Elizabeth Rhea.

He was the oldest son of Rev. Thomas Barton, and was a man of solid ability and great energy of character. In September, 1775, at the suggestion of his father, he left America for England, bearing with him letters of recommendation from Bishop Peters and other persons. While in Europe he laid the foundation of his education, and otherwise advanced his literary interests, for which he had a peculiar fondness. He left England in 1778 and returned to America, by way of Holland and the West Indies, and landed at Baltimore January 8, 1779. On his passage from the West Indies to the Continent he assisted in making prize of a British privateer, which was brought to Baltimore. Immediately upon landing he took the oath of fidelity and allegiance to the United States Government. Upon his arrival at Lancaster he received a letter from David Rittenhouse, dated January 24, 1779, in which he says: "I most sincerely congratulate you on your safe arrival, and impatiently expect the pleasure of seeing you here. I received yours from Baltimore ten days after the date, and immediately wrote to your father, supposing him to be still in New York; though we cannot be certain as to that matter." He was shortly afterwards admitted to the Lancaster bar, and also chosen an officer of the militia of the borough of Lancaster. His advocacy of the cause of the struggling colonies was warm and enthusiastic. On the 18th of August, 1789, he was nominated by President Washington, one of the Judges of the Western Territory, and the Senate ratified the nomination. He was afterwards (with but two exceptions) unanimously recommended by the Lancaster bar for the appointment to the President Judgeship of the District, composed of the counties of Lancaster, Chester, York and Dauphin. In 1779 he was an ardent Republican and staunch advocate of the election of Thomas McKean for Governor of Pennsylvania. Being a finished scholar and a fine writer, he was, during that campaign, the one generally selected to draft the Democratic addresses, then a leading feature of political parties. He was, in 1800, appointed Prothonotary of Lancaster county, and this office, together with the commission of Clerk of the Orphans' Court, which he obtained in 1803, he held up to 1809, when he was succeeded by John Passmore. He afterwards removed to Philadelphia, and was chosen secretary of the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia. He obtained from the University of Pennsylvania the honorary title of Master of Arts. He is the author of a dissertation on the Freedom of Navigation and Maritime Commerce, and also of a biography of the philosopher, David Rittenhouse.

He has also written a work on the abolition of trial by jury, wherein he vigorously and ably opposed the proposition. On the fly-leaf is written: "To R. P. Barton. From his Brother, the Author."

The work is in the possession of Randolph Barton, who is a grandson of R. P. Barton, and is an attorney-at law at Baltimore, Md.

Gen.	Individual No.	Family No.
5	4262	2	Esther Barton , b. April 17, 1756; m. March 3, 1774, to Paul Zantzinger, of Lancaster, by Rev. Dr. Smith; he was a merchant in the borough of Lancaster, Pa.; he went to camp at Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Mr. Bryan writes, March 15, 1779, that Zantzinger has a design of getting liberty to pass into New York. For this purpose he will hold forth his desiré to visit his father-in law, Rev. Thomas Barton, now in that city.

It is probable that he was accompanied by William Barton, who lately returned from England, and was a son of Rev. Thomas Barton.

John Paul Zantzinger, of Lancaster, was a merchant and an honorable, high-minded gentleman. They had sixteen children, and resided at Lancaster, Pa.; he was born 1744, and died June 23, 1817, aged 73 years.

5	4263	3	Benjamin Smith Barton , b. February 10, 1766; m. Mary Pennington, b. March 17, 1771; he was the son of Rev. Thomas Barton and Esther Rittenhouse.

HETTY BARTON ZANTZINGER.

Soon after the death of his parents he moved to the family of a brother in Philadelphia, in 1782, where he spent several years in the study of literature, the sciences, and medicine; in 1776 he went to Great Britain and prosecuted his medical studies at Edinburgh and London. He afterwards visited Gottingen, and there obtained the degree of Doctor of Medicine. On returning to Philadelphia, in 1789, he established himself as a physician in the city, and his superior talents and education soon procured him competent employment. He was that year appointed Professor of Natural History and Botany in the College of Philadelphia, and continued in that office on the incorporation of the college with the University, in 1791. He was appointed Professor of Materia Medica on the resignation of Dr. Griffith; and on the death of Dr. Rush, succeeded him in the department of the Theory and Practice of Medicine. He died December 19, 1816.

In 1803 he published "Elements of Botany, or Outlines of the Natural History of Vegetables, &c." Dr. Barton has the honor of being the first American who gave to his country an elementary work on botany.

He also published "Collections for an Essay Towards a Materia Medica of the United States."

In 1805 Dr. Barton commenced the publication of the "Medical and Physical Journal."

5	4264	4	Matthias Barton , b. 1762; d. January 11, 1809; m. Esther Cox, daughter of Tench Cox; had no issue.

He was a son of Rev. Thomas Barton. He was admitted to the bar in 1778, and was elected, from Lancaster county, to the Legislature in the years 1793, 1794 and 1795. In 1796 he was elected to the Senate of Pennsylvania, and re-elected in 1800. He was a man of superior culture and possessed a great fondness for natural history. He was a gentleman, very amiable in his manners, of unspotted, private virtue, and whose charms in society endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. He was a useful citizen, and ranked among the ablest men of Pennsylvania. He died January 11, 1809, in the 47th year of his age.

5	4267	7	Julianna Susanna Barton , m. John Moore White (Major), of New Jersey; had one child.

Judge White was the son of Major White, a merchant of Philadelphia, and a Revolutionary officer, whose mother was the daughter of Alexander Moore, of Bridgeton, N. J. His parents dying while he was an infant, he was reared by his grandparents, from whom he inherited a large estate in Bridgeton, N. J. He subsequently moved to Woodbury, N. J., in 1808, where he practiced law, and was appointed Attorney General of the state, in 1833, and Judge of the Supreme Court, in 1838. He was a tall, fine-looking man, and died in 1860, having lived to the age of 92 years.

His father, Major White, was an aid to General Sullivan, and was wounded at the battle of Germantown; he, however, followed with the retreating army, and died at a farm house on the Skippack road. He was buried with General Nash and others in the Mennonite burying-ground, at Kulpsville, Montgomery county, Pa., about twenty-five miles north of Philadelphia, where a monument has been erected to their memory. His handsome appearance and dress had conferred on him the soubriquet of "Beau White." His gold watch and sleeve buttons, decorated with blue enameled crest and monogram, are in the possession of a lady collaterally related.

A letter from Judge White to a friend, says:

JOHN MOORE WHITE.

"I am tied here for the whole of this week, if not next, which, under all circumstances, is to me (as friends say) a great cross. I had much rather be with you at Newark or elsewhere. May — that I will some day when you are more engaged than myself ask me to run of with, once for a day or so, and see friend. I think there is no probability that I can go away from here this week, and I am in court every day from 10 to 1 o'clock, and then from 3 to candlelight.

I am dear sir, with much respect,

Your friend, etc.,

JOHN MOORE WHITE.

He died January 10, 1821, the owner of a beautiful estate in that lovely country, to which he was probably attracted by its resemblance to Lancaster county, Pa. His sons were, Richard, Robert and David Walker.

He was a leading physician of Philadelphia, and graduated with distinction at the University of Pennsylvania, soon attaining a position as surgeon, and excelled in the treatment of difficult cases. His treatment of compound fractures of the leg by bran dressing is still followed in our large hospitals. His name has been associated with a peculiar fracture of the radius, involving the wrist joint, and with an ingenious bandage for dressing a broken jaw. He died at his residence, on South Broad street, Philadelphia, on January 1, 1871.

It is a well known fact that William P. C. Barton and each member of his class at Princeton took the name of some celebrated man. William P. C. Barton took that of Count Crillon. His cousin, John Rhea Smith (John R. C. Smith), took the name of Clarendon. They retained the initials of their college names to the end of their lives.

William P. C. Barton was born in Philadelphia, November 17, 1786, and graduated from Princeton College in 1805, and commenced the practice of medicine under the direction of his uncle, Dr. Benjamin Smith Barton, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1808. The subject of his graduation thesis was "Nitrous Oxide Gas." It was deemed worthy of publication, and was for many years a standard treatise upon that subject.

Dr. William P. C. Barton practiced medicine in Philadelphia, and was surgeon at the Pennsylvania Hospital. Upon the recommendation of the celebrated Dr. Benjamin Rush and Dr. Physick, was appointed surgeon in the navy. He organized the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery U. S. Navy, and was appointed by the Secretary of the Navy the first Chief of the Bureau. He was Professor of Botany in the University of Pennsylvania, and Professor Materia Medica and Botany in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He was stationed several times at the navy yard at Philadelphia, and at other stations on shore; he also had a great deal of sea duty. He became Fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia; a member of the American Philosophical Society; President of the Linnean Society; and honorary member and surgeon of the First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry.

As early as 1818 Dr. William P. C. Barton endeavored to obtain a charter for a new medical college. This movement was opposed by the friends of the University of Pennsylvania, and the efforts of Dr. William P. C. Barton and his friends proved unsuccessful. Seven years later Dr. McClellan established the Jefferson Medical College, and Dr. William P. C. Barton was Professor of it for three years. Dr. William P. C. Barton married Esther, daughter of Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant, a member of the Philadelphia bar, and granddaughter of the celebrated David Rittenhouse. She died June 4, 1870.

In an address before the Alumni Association of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, at its first anniversary, March 11, 1871, by S. D. Gross, M. D., LL. D., Professor of Surgery in the College, and President of the Association, Dr. Gross thus speaks of Dr. William P. C. Barton: "He was in all respects a remarkable man; highly educated, learned in his profession, a graceful lecturer, an able writer, and one of the most accomplished botanists in America. He abounded in flashes of wit, and a vein of irony and sarcasm was perceptible in almost everything he did and said. He had a passionate love for music and played with consummate ability upon the flute and violin. Many of his acts were marked by the eccentricities of genius. His style of lecturing was conversational, plain, simple and didactic, without any attempt at oratory; and his success as a teacher was all that could have been desired. In his appearance he was a model of neatness and elegance.

6	4281	4	Sarah Barton Zantzinger , b. March 9, 1778, between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon; was baptized by Rev. Mr. Barton.

She married General Franklin Davenport, of Woodbury, New Jersey, who was considered Woodbury's first lawyer, Gloucester county's most noted citizen, and one of the most distinguished men in New Jersey. He served in the Revolutionary War, and particularly distinguished himself at Fort Mifflin. He had an extensive law practice, and was made first Surrogate of New Jersey, by General Livingston, in 1785, and was United States Senator from New Jersey, in 1798 and 1799. He served as Colonel of the New Jersey Troops in the Whiskey Insurrection of 1794, and was also a member of the famous "Fox Hunting Club" established prior to the Revolution. General Davenport lived to an advanced age, and died about 1820.

J.; d., at Salem, August 13, 1854, and is buried by the side of her husband, in St. John's church-yard; she left no children.

Colonel Robert Gibbon Johnson was a prominent citizen of Salem, New Jersey, where his ancestors had been the first settlers. He graduated at Princeton College in 1790, but was frustrated in his cherished plan of studying law by the death of his father, and turned his attention to the care of his large landed estate. He was a man of great integrity of character, and when only 23 years of age was appointed one of the paymasters of the New Jersey Brigade in the Whiskey Insurrection of 1794. He was made Colonel of the militia cavalry in 1804, by Governor Williamson. Colonel Johnson possessed great culture, refinement and literary tastes, and drew around him the religious and literary minds of New Jersey, such as Bishop Croes, Dr. Staughton, Rev. Drs. Miller, Janeway, Ely, and Murray, of the Presbyterian Church; Chief Justice Kirkpatrick, Hon. Samuel Southard and others, who were his chosen friends and partakers of the hospitality of his handsome home. He was the principal founder of the First Presbyterian Church in his native town, the site of the church and grave-yard being his gift, a portion of his ancestral acres. He was one of the gentleman most instrumental in organizing the New Jersey Historical Society, in Trenton, in 1842, and was its first Vice President, and contributed many rare and original documents. He was also an historian, being the author of a "History of Salem, New Jersey," a standard work. Colonel Johnson lived to a ripe old age and died September, 1849, in his 80th year.

Mrs. Johnson was a lady of sterling character and fine appearance, and a kind and loving mother to her husband's children, who reverence her memory.

The following letter is inserted here on account of its valuable information:

MINNEAPOLIS, April 8, 1891.

Miss Anna M. Rittenhouse and sisters, Rittenhouse and Wisahickon avenues, Germantown, Pa.:

Dear Cousins—Although impatient to answer your cordial and valued letter of March 8th, circumstances have prevented me, until now. Within that interval our family have in turn suffered from the gripp; am desirous to give you some data concerning our branch of the clan, that you might place it properly in the tree you are cultivating. I wrote to aunt Hannah, of Sunbury, for information. Her autograph reply came a few days ago, and I expected then to send you on this the day we celebrate, but, alas, I have to mutter with many another the best laid plans of mine —— I will try to get even with you. This pedigree business always knocked me out in a very few rounds, and if I get through intelligibly I will be both surprised and pleased.

My wife, Martha Louise Rittenhouse, with her brother, Charles Edwin, and sister, Mary Frances, were the children of Rev. John Hughes Rittenhouse and Jane S. Simonton. Mr. R.'s father was David, called after his uncle David, whose birthday you celebrate. Aunt Hannah Jordan, widow of the late Judge Jordan, of Sunbury, was sister to Rev. John Hughes Rittenhouse, above. Philosopher David's brother, Benjamin, was their grandfather, and, of course, their father, David's father, Benjamin, married Elizabeth Bull, who died early in life, leaving four children, viz.: David, who married Sarah Hughes; John (second son), married Miss Beverly, of Virginia, both died young, leaving one son, John Beverly Rittenhouse, who was purser in the U. S. Navy many years; died in Philadelphia, and, like some others of the clan, never married.

The third son, Benjamin Franklin Rittenhouse, was a midshipman in the navy, and on board the fleet sent to the siege of Tripoli died and was buried at sea, aged 19 years. The fourth child was a daughter, and married Michael Nourse, who was the youngest of twenty-one children (auntie did not say whether this fact gave rise to the name or vice versa), and who was chief clerk in the Register's office at Washington, under his brother, Joseph Nourse, who was the eldest of the twenty-one, and Register of the Treasury, until General Jackson came into office, with "to the victor belongs the spoils." Mr. Joseph Nourse received his appointment from General Washington. This Michael Nourse, who married Mary, grandfather's only sister, Mary by name, and who was the mother of twelve children, raising seven sons and three daughters. Benjamin's (brother of David), (through whom our clan descended) wife's father was Colonel John Bull. His family consisted of one son and five daughters. Auntie* says these people have a most interesting and romantic history. The second daughter, Anna, married General Smith, of Virginia; third daughter married Joseph Nourse, mentioned above, Register of Treasury—her name, Maria; fourth, Rebecca, who married Captain John Boyd; fifth, Sarah, who had three husbands—a daughter of this one, my wife and I had the pleasure of seeing, and at auntie's. They owned all the land on which Northumberland was built. But I have about finished my tale. Perhaps, worried you. Auntie expresses her opinion in favor of Rittenhouse Square for the statue, but she says: "If it depends on a wordy legislature, you, I and all others will be old and gray-haired before you see it."

JOSHUA WILLIAMS.

THE MORGAN FAMILY.

CHILDREN OF No. 35. VOL. I.

MARGARET RITTENHOUSE, b. about 1728; m. Edward Morgan; had, as far as known, one son, named Morgan Morgan; she was a daughter of MATTHIAS RITTENHOUSE³, of NICHOLAS², of WILLIAM¹.

Gen.	Individual No.	Family No.
5	3900	I	Morgan Morgan , b. Fifth-month 3, 1749, died Second-month 29, 1832; m. Ann Roberts, daughter of John Roberts, of Whitpan township, Montgomery county, Pa., at Gwynedd meeting house; Fourth-month 21, 1774. Ann Roberts was born Twelfth-month 14, 1748, died Tenth-month 15, 1808.

Charles Morgan, of Wilkesbarre, writes. "I have not been able to trace any of grandfather Morgan's family further than his father, Edward Morgan, who married Margaret Rittenhouse. I never learned whether he had any brothers or sisters. He was a blacksmith by trade, and I think his father was the same. He could speak Dutch, which leads me to think he might have been related to the Morgans in Towamensing-township, Montgomery county, Pa.

"What leads me to think that Edward was a blacksmith is that my mother gave me a stamp or stencil which is now in possession of my son Edward S. Morgan. It has the initials E. M."

NOTE.—Margaret Rittenhouse was a sister of David the astronomer.

MR. DANIEL K. CASSEL.

My Dear Sir,—Agreeable to my promise to you when you were in Wilkesbarre, I beg to enclose the copy of the marriage certificate of my grandfather Benjamin Morgan. I have made it a "verbatim copy," not correcting the errors which it contains. The capitalization and the punctuation are precisely as in the original. The signatures are in five columns ruled as in the copy. I trust that it will be entirely plain and clear to you, as to the general form of the document. I think you understood that I desired my name added to the subscription list for a copy of the work with a good substantial binding. I shall be glad to do anything further for you at any time.

Very truly yours, BENJAMIN F. MORGAN.

In the possession of their son, Charles Morgan, Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Third-month 21, 1887; of Horsham township, Montgomery county, Pa., to whom four children were born, viz: Mary, Rebecca, William and Charles. Benjamin has a clock, made by David Rittenhouse, in good running order; family tradition says it was a wedding present from David Rittenhouse to his sister Margaret. Charles Morgan says: "It belonged to grandfather Morgan, after his death to my father, and after his death to brother Benjamin, who prizes it highly." He says further, "Brother Benjamin has lost his sight, but remains in excellent health, and goes down to his mill almost every day and attends to their chopping mill. I think he remembers yet of seeing Benjamin Rittenhouse, the brother of David, at his father's. He resides half a mile from Heaton station, and near a mile from Willow Grove station on the branch road running to Hatboro." He died June 9, 1896. |

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan were assisted by nearly 300 of their friends last evening in celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. The cosy home on North Franklin street was thronged from six o'clock to ten. The rooms were prettily decorated with quantities of smilax hanging in ropes and draperies, and the mantles were banked with flowers and bunches of exquisite roses and other cut flowers. The dining room was made inviting by the beautifully decorated table which was set with dainties and prettily lighted. The supper was an elaborate one, consisting of croquettes, salads of different kinds, coffee the most fragrant, creams, ices, bon bons, almonds and quantities of confectionery, and other dainties. It was served by a corps of waiters under the direction of Mrs. Hochreiter.

While the guests thronged the rooms, congratulated host and hostess, and talked, laughed or ate, the Raff quartet, hidden behind a curtain of smilax, played the most delicious music. In an upper room were the presents—all manner of costly bric-a-brac, silver, rare china, a banquet lamp, etc., etc. There was a glass vase full of gold fish, a reminder from George A. Wells of numerous fishing trips which he and Mr. Morgan had enjoyed.

A novel feature was a profusion of gold pieces under a glass case. Two gilded apples were cut open revealing a radiation of $10 pieces inside. A gilded shoe held a handful of them, and others were fastened on cards or covered the bottom of the case. It was a display of yellow beauty that was quite entrancing.

Over the tables of presents were displayed two wedding certificates. One was that of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, setting forth that Charles Morgan and Ellen Hann were married April 2, 1842, in Wilkesbarre, by Rev. Daniel W. Bristol, and the witnesses were John Behee and S. G. Beaumont.

Above this framed certificate is a large piece of aged yellow parchment also framed. It is the wedding certificate of Mr. Morgan's parents, Benjamin Morgan and Tacy Stroud, in Montgomery county, May 13, 1800. This parchment is all hand written and describes the marriage, which was by Quaker custom. Each having declared their intention beforehand, they in the presence of a large number of the Society of Friends, took each other by the hand, each declaring that they would love and honor the other until death should them part. The document is signed by at least 75 witnesses; the signatures written in four columns.

Mr. Morgan, whose wedding anniversary was celebrated last night, is still a member of the Society of Friends. He came here for his health from Philadelphia in 1839, as far as Harrisburg by rail and from there to Wilkesbarre by canal packet. The journey took three days and two nights. The place evidently agreed with him, for he stayed, and three years later married Miss Ellen Hann, she being at that time 18 and he 27. Fifty years have since passed over the heads of each, but time has dealt so kindly that both look younger by many years, and both are hearty and vigorous. Mr. Morgan can yet outwalk any fisherman in this locality, and he is a champion with rod and line, too.

In 1843 Mr. Morgan began the shoe business with John Kline, grandfather of Mrs. Dr. Boyle, of this city. In 1869 Jesse T. Morgan entered the firm and in 1876 he and his brother, Wm. B., took charge of the business, which has always been prosperous and is to-day. Mr. Morgan the elder embarked in the hardware business in 1868 with his son, E. S. Morgan. In 1886 Charles E. and Benjamin Morgan entered, and the firm became C. Morgan's Sons, a business name that is well and favorably known throughout this region.

At this time Mr. Morgan retired from active business and has since enjoyed the results of his industry, happy in seeing his sons following his business success, and contented in the love of his devoted home circle. But though not active in business he is personally active and as thoroughly interested in affairs of to-day as his own sons.

Among the guests last night were Mr. and Mrs. Locksley and Morris Locksley, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Evans and Wm. West Evans, of Philadelphia, and

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Conard, of Fort Washington. The affair was delightful and will long be remembered.

Of the immediate family there were present nine children six of whom are married, and nine grandchildren. The youngest grandchild is Charles Byron Morgan, aged three months, bright and interesting. He represented the third generation of Charleses, the second being Charles Evans, the baby's father.
