Scope and Content Note

Set of topographic maps created by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers from 1894 to 1945, in the event it became necessary to move troops throughout the country. They are replete with detailed information relevant to such maneuvers. The areas represented include: the continental U.S., Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and the Panama Canal Area. Features on the maps include: military bases and training areas; landing strips; transportation networks; communication centers; hydrography; and topography. The maps are labeled in one of three ways: Tactical, Progressive and Strategic. Tactical maps are the most detailed and contain firing grids for artillery.

The map collection reflects changes in U.S. military command structure from pre-World War I to World War II. In 1917, the United States was divided into six geographical zones for the purposes of military administration and national defense. By 1942, Army-level organization was implemented. Corps areas were reconstituted to serve the Army's supply system and to perform administration functions, such as induction centers.

Some maps are stamped "restricted." World War II-era "restricted" maps include oil fields, military sites, and areas from where Japanese-Americans were forcibly evacuated. These maps are no longer restricted.

The collection comprises 1344 map sheets but coverage of the United States and the Panama Canal Area is incomplete. Publication dates range from 1894-1945. The most common scale is 1:62,500; other scales include: 1:31,680, 1:48,000, 1:125,000, and 1:250,000. Strategic maps are scaled 1:250,000.

The tactical map index was created in 1917 and represents the six geographical military departments. Sheets are numbered using a "Tactical" index and/or "Harriman" index. The Harriman index is not contained in the collection.

Each map contains a sheet number and grid number, location, date, map type (tactical, progressive, etc.), and any additional relevant information. For example, 5 --- S IV E/2 --- Receta Head, OR --- 1920 --- Progressive --- Corps of Engineers.

Grids explained: Each surveyed location was given a number and a grid area, which was divided between north and south. Each half was subdivided in four quadrants (I, II, III & IV). Quadrants were further divided into east and west.

In the above example of Receta Head, OR, the grid location is listed as: 5 --- S IV E/2. This is to be understood as sheet 5, southern half, IV quadrant, east portion of.

U.S. Army Commands

First Army:

First Corps Area replaced the Northeastern Department and was headquartered in Boston, Massachusetts, encompassing Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont and Connecticut.

Second Corps Area replaced the Eastern Department, headquartered at Fort Jay on Governors Island in New York City and encompassed New York, New Jersey, Delaware and at various times, Puerto Rico.

Third Corps Area headquartered at Fort McHenry in Baltimore, Maryland and included Pennsylvania, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia. From 1921 to 1927, Washington, D.C. was withdrawn from III Corps Area and established as the District of Washington.

Second Army:

Fourth Corps Area, headquartered at Fort McPherson in Atlanta Georgia, replaced the Southeastern Department based in Charleston, South Carolina and encompassed the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Fifth Corps Area was variously headquartered at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana and Fort Hays at Columbus, Ohio and encompassed Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

Sixth Corps Area was headquartered in Chicago, Illinois, then Fort Sheridan, Illinois and covered the states of Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois.

Third Army:

Seventh Corps Area was headquartered at Fort Crook in Omaha, Nebraska and included Arkansas, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska.

Eighth Corps Area, variously headquartered in Dallas and Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio Texas, replaced the Southern Department and included Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

Ninth Corps Area, headquartered at the Presidio of San Francisco, California, replaced the Western Department and included Alaska, Idaho, Montana, California, Wyoming, Washington, Utah and Oregon.

Arrangement of the Collection

The collection is arranged according to sheet number and has been divided into six file drawers.
